

Two shores, one sky, and a journey that connects them. 🌍✨

For a decade, our Chef de Partie, Demba, has been a vital bridge between Scotland and his home country of Senegal. This spring and summer he is cooking for all of us here in Gairloch, and every autumn, he returns home to the coastal fishing village of Thiaroye-sur-Mer.

Just like the Highland Ospreys that migrate thousands of miles every year from our glens to the West African coast, Demba's life moves with a natural rhythm. And just like the Ospreys, he travels with a purpose.

Each winter, Demba uses his savings and tips earned right here as a chef in Scotland to fund life-changing community projects back home—from providing vital school supplies and building street drainage systems to combat the floods, to supporting the local hospital and helping women establish financial independence.

In Senegal, there is a word for this deep, open-hearted spirit of community and hospitality: Teranga. It's a philosophy we share down to our very roots.

We are incredibly proud to "fly with him" on his mission. Want to see what Demba is building and learn how you can be a part of the journey?
